Customer Reviews

This book was an excellent read. I highly recommend it. Enter the world where a reporter inherited a lot of money and acquired two Siamese cats. The one cat is a kleptomaniac, sort of. The other is really smart, maybe smarter than the reporter. They solve crimes in unusual ways.

I loved these books-read years ago and gave them away-now I have re-purchased all and will keep them. You get to know and like-or dislike-the towns characters. They are like old friends. I never liked Polly though-she was a pain.

She did it again. Lillian Jackson Braun's Jim Qwilleran and his cats, Koko and Yum-yum are always a delight. If you like lots of quirky, lovable characters and small town feel, you will enjoy this book.

LOVE ALL THE CAT WHO BOOKS, AND AM READING EVERY ONE OF THEM IN ORDER...
HATE TO THINK THAT THEY END AFTER #29.....

I love "cozy" mysteries....yes, there is an ongoing romance but we are not subjected to the details.

I'm more interested in the murder(s). It is nice that many of the characters carry over from one book to another (or at least until they become a victim). I don't know if Ms. Braun's style of writing is for everyone but I enjoy these books immensely. I cannot wait to get to the end but then I'm a little sad the murder has been solved, at least there are plenty more books in the series. There are some very good reviews already listed-much better than I can give.

This is book #15 in "The Cat Who..." series by Lillian Jackson Braun. In this book Qwill and the cats move into a mansion in downtown. Qwill finds information about a fire that destroyed the entire area in the past and makes up a one-man broadcast play about it and starts touring around Moose County doing performances. This book will really draw you into the fear and horrible sights that occurred during this terrible fire. Koko is on the job to solve another mystery. This house has a lot of closets and Koko keeps disappearing into them and coming up with clues about the supposed suicide of the mansions owner, Euphonia Gage. A great new character is introduced from Florida, Celia Robinson, who helps Qwill with information about Ms Gage's landlords. She's hilarious! One of Lillian Jackson Braun's best "Cat Who..." books!

I have been reading this collection for years. It reads like a soap opera. I know the characters, the town and look forward to another installment at the end of each novel. Since the author is deceased, I figure that by the time I read the last novel, so many years have gone by from the first one, I will re read the collection again. This is why I'm thrilled I have them as Kindle Editions. This is light reading. Not for everyone. But if you enjoy light whimsical story telling with detailed imagery of characters and setting you should enjoy these books. The author did get a little bit repetitive in her last few books, as she aged some. But it was still enjoyable.

I think this was my favorite "The Cat Who.." so far. It is late autumn in Pickax. Qwill and the cats rent a downtown mansion from Mrs. Gage to be closer to civilization in case of blizzards. Qwill has just written a play about a fire long ago in Pickax and begins giving performances. The town receives word that Mrs. Gage who had sold out and moved to Florida, had committed suicide. Qwill and Koko do not feel all is right with that scenario. Along the way, Qwill meets a young, beautiful, dog sled racer who had a big part in this mystery. The story takes place over my three favorite holidays; Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas. You will love this edition of "The Cat Who..." series.
