

The book was found

Pathways To Peace: America And The Arab-Israeli Conflict

Synopsis

Recent upheavals in the Middle East are challenging long-held assumptions about the dynamics between the United States, the Arab world, and Israel. In Pathways to Peace, today's leading experts explain these changes in the region and their positive implications for the prospect of a sustained peace between Israel and the Arab World.

Book Information

Hardcover: 240 pages

Publisher: Palgrave Macmillan; 2012 edition (October 23, 2012)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 1137304790

ISBN-13: 978-1137304797

Product Dimensions: 6.4 x 1 x 11 inches

Shipping Weight: 15.2 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 5.0 out of 5 stars 1 customer review

Best Sellers Rank: #785,349 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #88 in Books > Politics & Social Sciences > Politics & Government > International & World Politics > Treaties #610 in Books > Politics & Social Sciences > Politics & Government > Specific Topics > War & Peace #842 in Books > Politics & Social Sciences > Politics & Government > International & World Politics > Diplomacy

Customer Reviews

"This is absolutely the right time for a book of essays that reinforce the urgent necessity of lasting peace between Israelis and Palestinians. This book is the antidote to the fatalism and pessimism; and above all it shows that with will and courage, a solution could be found. These are serious practical essays in policy making. You can agree or disagree with all that is written. But the essential urgency of the case is undeniable and brilliantly set out here." - Tony Blair, Prime Minister of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (1997-2007), Quartet Representative to the Middle East since 2007

"Now, nearly two decades after Rabin and Arafat shook hands on the White House lawn, Pathways to Peace offers a forward-looking assessment of the relationship between Israel, Palestine, and the United States. Through its diverse perspectives, this volume reminds us that cooperation must be rooted in shared responsibilities and shared benefits, and that the peace of the brave is still within reach." - President Bill Clinton "Pathways to Peace is an extraordinary expression of wisdom on the urgent need for peace between Israelis and Palestinians. Europeans, as well as Israelis, Palestinians and Americans, would be well-advised to act on the smart policy recommendations in this book. Imagine the impact on a rapidly changing Middle East of Israeli-Palestinian peace!" - Javier Solana, Foreign Minister of Spain (1992-1995), Former Secretary-General of NATO (1995-1999), Former EU High Representative for Foreign and Security Policy (1999-2009), President of the ESADE Center for Global Economy and Geopolitics "A realistic and relevant set of cogent contributions from some of the most respected and experienced practitioners and thinkers on the Middle East peace process. This is a book not just for our leaders, but for all global citizens. Most important inventory I've read of thoughts and observations on this combustibly dangerous elusive issue." - Chuck Hagel, US Senator (1997-2009), Distinguished Professor, Georgetown University "Kurtzer and his co-authors are to be commended for their efforts. Their book is engagingly written and highly recommended." -The Israel Journal of Foreign Affairs

Samih Al Abid served as Minister of Public Work and Housing in the Palestinian Authority, as an advisor to the Palestinian Investment Fund, and as the general director of an independent development company aiming to strengthen the local economy and generate investment. He currently heads the Palestinian Housing Council. During final status negotiations with Israel, he headed the committee on borders and territory, and was a key participant in the negotiations in the Camp David, Taba, and Annapolis processes. Al Abid earned a Ph.D. in regional development planning and an M.A. in urban design. Yossi Alpher is a consultant and writer on Israel-related strategic issues, and is coeditor of the bitterlemons.net family of internet publications. Alpher served in the Israel Defense Forces as an intelligence officer, followed by service in the Mossad. From 1981 to 1995 he was associated with the Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies at Tel Aviv University, ultimately serving as its director. During the Camp David summit, he served as special adviser to the prime minister of Israel, concentrating on the Israeli-Palestinian peace process. James A. Baker, III, served in senior government positions under three U.S. presidents. He was the nation's 61st Secretary of State under President George Bush. He was the 67th Secretary of the Treasury under President Ronald Reagan. He served as White House Chief of Staff to President Reagan during his first term. Mr. Baker's record of public service began in 1975 as Under Secretary of Commerce to President Gerald Ford. It concluded in January 1993 with his service as White House Chief of Staff and Senior Counselor to President Bush. Mr. Baker graduated from Princeton University in 1952, and received his J.D. with honors from The University of Texas School of Law at Austin. Mr. Baker received the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1991 and has been the recipient of numerous other awards and honorary academic degrees. He is presently a senior partner in the law firm of Baker

Botts, and is Honorary Chairman of the James A. Baker III Institute for Public Policy at Rice University. Samuel Berger served as National Security Advisor to President Bill Clinton from 1997-2001. In that capacity, he drove policy advancing the peace process in the Middle East. Mr. Berger also served as Deputy National Security Advisor during President Clinton's first term; as director of national security for the 1992 Clinton-Gore Transition; and as senior foreign policy advisor to Governor Clinton during the 1992 presidential campaign. He currently serves as chair of Albright Stonebridge Group, a global strategy firm. Robert M. Danin is the Eni Enrico Mattei Senior Fellow for Middle East and Africa Studies at the Council on Foreign Relations. He headed the Jerusalem mission of the Quartet representative, Tony Blair, from April 2008 until August 2010. A former career State Department official with over twenty years of Middle East experience, Danin served as deputy assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs and at the National Security Council as director for Israeli-Palestinian affairs and the Levant. He earlier served as a Middle East specialist on the secretary of state's Policy Planning Staff and as a senior State Department Middle East analyst. Danin earned a doctorate in the international relations of the Middle East from St. Antony's College, Oxford University. P. J. Dermer (Colonel, retired) is one of the Army's foremost Middle East regional experts. His career spanned over 30 years of experience, including, military and civilian arenas in Washington and overseas. He has extensive coalition-building experience working with international counterparts to advance the Middle East peace process, as well as rebuilding Iraq's critical national security institutions. In his post-military career, he has used his skills to foster private business enterprise development, including development of several entrepreneurial start-up ventures. Countries of expertise include Israel, Lebanon, Syria, Egypt, Iraq, North Africa, and the Persian Gulf. Avi Gil served as the director-general of Israel's ministry of foreign affairs (2001-2002). He was closely involved in Israel's policy-making and peace efforts, including the negotiations that led to the Oslo Accords and the peace treaty with Jordan. Ambassador Gil is a senior fellow at the Jewish People Policy Institute and a senior strategic adviser at the S. Daniel Abraham Center for Middle East Peace. Gershom Gorenberg is the author of The Accidental Empire: Israel and the Birth of the Settlements, 1967-1977 and The Unmaking of Israel, which examines the impact of occupation and settlement on Israeli democracy and society. As a journalist he has covered Israeli politics for over 25 years. In 2010 he was a visiting professor at Columbia University. He lives in Jerusalem. Samir Hilileh joined PADICO Holding as Chief Executive Officer in 2008. Prior to that, he was the managing director of The Portland Trust in Palestine, served as the cabinet secretary general of the Palestinian government (2005-2006) and as the assistant undersecretary for the ministry of economy and trade (1994-1997). He is an active member in the Palestine Trade Center, the Palestine Economic Policy Research Institute (MAS), the International Chamber of Commerce in Palestine, and the Palestine International Business Forum. He is president of Birzeit University Alumni Association and a member of the board of trustees of the Friends Schools in Ramallah. Ghassan Khatib is vice president for advancement and lecturer on cultural studies at Birzeit University, where he previously served as vice president for community outreach. He has served as director of the Palestinian Government Media Center; and as minister of labor (2002) and minister of planning (2005-2006). He founded and directed the Jerusalem Media and Communication Center. He was a member of the Palestinian delegation to the Madrid Middle East peace conference and the bilateral negotiations in Washington. Khatib co-founded and co-directed bitterlemons.org, a Palestinian-Israeli internet-based political magazine. Khatib holds a Ph.D. in Middle East politics from the University of Durham. He is the author of Palestinian Politics and The Middle East Peace Process: consensus and competition in the Palestinian negotiation team. Daniel C. Kurtzer is the S. Daniel Abraham professor of Middle East policy studies at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. During a 29-year career in the foreign service, he served as the United States ambassador to Egypt and Israel. He is the co-author of Negotiating Arab-Israeli Peace: American Leadership in the Middle East (2008) and The Peace Puzzle: America's Quest for Arab-Israeli Peace (2013). He received his Ph.D. from Columbia University. Robert Malley is director of the International Crisis Group's Middle East and North Africa program. In that capacity, he directs teams of analysts in Israel, Iraq, Syria, Egypt, Lebanon, Tunisia, Libya, Morocco, and the Gulf. Until January 2001, Mr. Malley was special assistant to President Clinton for Arab-Israeli affairs and director for Near East and South Asian affairs at the National Security Council. He served as a law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White in 1991-1992. He is a graduate of Yale University, Harvard Law School and Oxford University where he was a Rhodes Scholar. He is the author of The Call from Algeria: Third Worldism, Revolution and the Turn to Islam. Aaron David Miller is currently a distinguished scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, DC where he's finishing a new book - Can America Have Another Great President? For two decades, he served in the department of state as an analyst, negotiator and adviser on Middle Eastern issues to Republican and Democratic secretaries of state. He has written four books, including The Much Too Promised Land: America's Elusive Search for Arab-Israeli Peace (Bantam Books, 2008). His articles have appeared in the Washington Post, the New York Times, the Los Angeles Times; and his column 'Reality Check' appears weekly in Foreign Policy Magazine. He is a frequent commentator on CNN, Fox News, MSNBC, and NPR. Marwan Muasher is vice president for studies at the Carnegie

Endowment. He served as foreign minister (2002-2004) and deputy prime minister (2004-2005) of Jordan, and as Jordan's ambassador to the United States and Israel. Between 2007-2010, he was senior vice president of external affairs at the World Bank. He is the author of The Arab Center: The Promise of Moderation (2008). William B. Quandt is the Edward R. Stettinius professor of politics at the University of Virginia. From 1972-74 and from 1977-79, he served on the staff of the National Security Council and participated in the peace talks that led to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. He is the author of Peace Process: American Diplomacy and the Arab-Israeli Conflict Since 1967, third edition, (Brookings, 2005). Steven White is an independent Middle East consultant, currently writing the history of the United States Security Coordinator (USSC) Mission. As a Marine Corps Reserve Major, he served as the senior Middle East adviser to three U.S. security coordinators and as the mission's liaison to the government of Israel, the UN, Office of the Quartet Representative, and the British diplomatic missions in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv. He was educated at the Military College of South Carolina, The Citadel and was one of the first co-recipients of the Anna-Sobol Levy Graduate Fellowships to the Hebrew University of Jerusalem (1990-1991.)

The strength of this book about Israeli-Palestinian negotiations lies in the range of viewpoints and solutions it presents. The 16 accomplished policy experts make different points, emphases, and proposals, unified by their common expression of the seriousness and urgency of reaching a two-state solution. They show that it is possible to have different ideas about policy details while agreeing that the time to act for peace is now. Thus Yossi Alpher can say that President Obama "has delivered more security backing than have any of his predecessors" while Ghassan Khatib worries that Obama's failures have "allowed others to move [the peace process] backward." With the book's release immediately following Obama's re-election, the analysis is obviously relevant. The level of nuance within each essay enables the reader to understand multiple perspectives. The authors often look back at the recent history of negotiations. They are informed by the past, not to provide excuses for the current situation nor to justify inflaming tensions, but always to return to the question of what can be done today to move forward. In addition to Ambassador Kurtzer's essays which open and close the book, there is a foreword and eleven essays by experts. The foreword, by James A. Baker III and Samuel Berger, argues for U.S. involvement in Israeli-Palestinian negotiations because a peaceful resolution is in American interests and because the United States is the only third party trusted by both sides. "If the United States disengages from peace talks," Baker and Berger write, "there will be no one to take our place." Drawing from the "menu" of concrete policy suggestions offered in this book, the reader can take up Ambassador Kurtzer's invitation to "imagine the important and tangible gains possible if progress is achieved in a US-led Israeli-Palestinian peace process."

Download to continue reading...

Pathways to Peace: America and the Arab-Israeli Conflict The Peace Puzzle: America's Quest for Arab-Israeli Peace, 1989-2011 Peace Process: American Diplomacy and the Arab-Israeli Conflict since 1967 Palestine and the Arab-Israeli Conflict: A History with Documents The Balfour Declaration: The Origins of the Arab-Israeli Conflict A History of the Arab-Israeli Conflict The Arab-Israeli Conflict (Cambridge History Programme Key Stage 4) The Arab-Israeli Conflict 1945-79. by Mike Scott-Baumann (Access to History for the Ib Diploma) The Arab-Israeli Conflict: The 1948 War (Essential Histories (Rosen)) The Arab-Israeli Conflict (Atlas of Conflicts) Understanding the Arab-Israeli Conflict: What the Headlines Haven't Told You The Absence of Peace: Understanding the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict Fabricating Israeli History: The 'New Historians' (Israeli History, Politics and Society) The Origins of the American-Israeli Alliance: The Jordanian Factor (Israeli History, Politics and Society) Conflict Resolution in the Workplace: How to Handle and Resolve Conflict at Work ~ an Essential Guide to Resolving Conflict in the Workplace F. G. A. Stone: Leaving No Stone Unturned: Pathways in Organometallic Chemistry (Profiles, Pathways, and Dreams) Pathways 4: Listening, Speaking, & Critical Thinking (Pathways: Listening, Speaking, & Critical Thinking) Pathways to Illness, Pathways to Health Jerusalem Recipes: A Cookbook of Israeli and Arab Traditions The Lands of the Bible: Israel, the Palestinian Territories, Sinai & Egypt, Jordan, Notes on Syria and Lebanon, Comments on the Arab-Israeli Wars & the Palestinian Refugees, The Clash of Cultures

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help