Nephilim (Orion Chronicles)

Synopsis

Seventeen-year-old Remy is a Conjuror – someone who can alter reality with his music. But such a talent comes with a price. He and his superpowered friends, Matt and Em Calder, are engaged in a dangerous battle to save humanity as we know it. If they are to succeed, they must first decipher a coded message in Remy's dead mother's journal. A message which will lead them to an ancient scroll buried deep in the Vatican – and towards dark forces which have risen from the depths of time . . .

"Captivating fantasy adventure." – Sunday Express "An exciting page-turner awash with devils and demons." – Scottish Sunday Post

John Barrowman is an actor who has starred in Torchwood, Doctor Who, and Arrow. His sister, Carole Barrowman, is a talk show host and teacher in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. They are the authors of Hollow Earth, Bone Quill and The Book of Beasts.

Nephilim is the second book in the Orion Chronicles by the Barrowman siblings. And what Conjuror brilliantly started, is continued in Nephilim in a superb way. When you read this book you get on a rollercoaster ride all over the world and through time. And if you love the arts, music and history you are even more in for a treat. In a most imaginative way the authors create a web of different worlds of art and music and of different historical periods of time and connect them in their gripping storytelling. The book's characters are vibrant and come across to the reader as three-dimensional. And though its heroes Em, RÃfÂ©my and Matt have superpowers in art and music, they still live in present day world with its contradictions, not in a fantasy sub-universe where everything can be fixed with some magic spells. Instead, the real world and the other realities the three teenagers have to deal with create a tension which makes for a high enjoyable reading experience also for the adult reader and readers who usually don't read fantasy stories. This is a mystery road trip, full of adventures and action.
