New York In Color

Synopsis

This photographic portrait of New York captures the city as never before, in a vibrant visual tour, color by color. From Staten Island Ferry orange to taxicab yellow, photographer and writer Nichole Robertson brings New York's quintessential shades into focus, seeking out the city's hiding-in-plain-sight treasures: bananas sold streetside for a dollar, bright red "no parking" signs, stacks of delicious golden brown pretzels, gleaming Art Deco gold archways. Arranged by color, these striking views portray the spirit of the city across every borough. A unique love letter to the iconic metropolis, this celebration of the city will charm locals as well as everyone who loves or dreams of visiting the Big Apple.

Nichole Robertson is the author of Paris in Color and Paris in Love, and cofounder of the creative studio Obvious State. She lives in New York.

I confess that I'm a huge fan of anything Nichole Robertson does. But this book? It is perfection. Particularly for any current, former or aspiring New Yorkers. She captures in her photographs what you see wandering the streets of your favorite hood. This is no collection of cliché NYC sights; it's the little things that make New York, well, New York. Bright yellow bananas at the corner fruit stand. Royal blue on a do-people-still-use-those? pay phone. The amazing black and white contrast of an average subway grate in the sidewalk. These are things you take for granted when you live there but that, luckily, Nichole's beautiful photographs capture for you to enjoy. Also makes an awesome gift for any New York lover on your list!

This is such a unique and inspiring look at New York. One doesn't usually think of New York in so many hues but Robertson's strength is in sussing out the colorful energy in the city that never sleeps. This was a wonderful visual journey!
