Washington. (The Seattle Times (also ran in syndication))

Seattle resident JOAN BURTON was herself introduced to hiking as a child, and she has been involved in introducing not only her own children to the joys of outdooring, but also members of the Girl Scout and Cub Scout groups of which she was the leader. Photographer and writer IRA SPRING'S crisp, breathtaking images of the Northwest wilderness have been inspiring outdoor enthusiasts for several decades. His creative stamp can be found in more than forty books on the outdoors, including Mountaineers Books' titles such as, An Ice Ax, A Camera, And A Jar of Peanut Butter. Ira Spring was also one of the original contributors to the 100 Classic Hikes series. One of the Northwest's most active trail lobbyists, Spring was given the 1992 Theodore Roosevelt Conservation Award for his volunteer efforts toward trail preservation and funding.

I'm on my 7th copy of this book. I always end up giving a copy to someone with kids who wants to do hiking. My new GF is a Nanny so had to buy again so we can take the kids places this summer. Best book of it's kind. I'm a North West native and avid hiker. Totally recommend.

Excellent reference. Organized logically. Would be nice to include some more Urban parks and include a space for notes on other hikes.

We recently moved to western WA with our two young kids and are always looking for places to explore on the weekends. This book offers great hikes and activities to do with kids. The book is divided by region, which helps with planning day and weekend trips. The hikes include pictures and detailed instructions on how to get to the places. The hikes are rated so you know how to adjust for the age and stamina of the kids. Great purchase!

Some maps are not accurate, but the advice are good. Combine it with Google Map and/or MapMyHike to get accurate map and it's really a good book.

Great book! I'm so looking forward to taking the kids out using this book. Thank you so much!

We just did our first hike from this book and it was a big success! I have 7 year old twin boys and it is always nice to know exactly what to expect from the trail before you go. We actually had a a hard time choosing the hike, but we did Rattlesnake ridge. It was a lot of fun, all the details were helpful and accurate, including parking info. Can't wait to go again soon!

exactly as expected

Good information. Just wish print was a little bigger.
