Customer Reviews

The Editors of The Johns Hopkins Medical Letter: Health After 50 are leading physicians from every medical field. The chief editor is Simeon Margolis, M.D., Ph. D., a Professor of Medicine and Biological Chemistry at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore, Maryland.

I purchased this because I already own the Johns Hopkins Medical Guide and thought it'd be a useful addition to supplement that. It's okay, but there really isn't anything new or noteworthy to advise anyone to buy this if you already own that other book. This is a useful guide to have if you own no other medical books at home. Overall, a worthwhile purchase for those that don't have any other health books.

On an impulse, I sent this book to my father (he's age 77) to help him be better informed about his health. He lives out of state and I'm not always available to find answers to his questions. He's very healthy, but recently he's had bouts of vertigo and anxiety. The book is helpful to him to confirm the information that his physicians give him, and he finds that reassuring. Overall, he says that he really enjoys reading the book and that it's a good reference.

A very thorough, up-to-date resource for older people who don't need all the information on pregnancy and childrens' issues, but need more information on issues affecting older people and the elderly. Lots of illustrations. One of the best on the market today. It arrived earlier than expected, in excellent condition. I am very pleased.

Very good book

It is O.K., but I haven't read all of it. I bought it when my sister-in-law was in the hospital, but she passed away soon after the book arrived.

The information is concise, easy to find, and easy to understand. It gives me an excellent point from which to start if I need to research a health problem further. It also helps me prepare for my doctors' visits by knowing what to ask. I have changed my diet to include more healthy foods because of this book. As a relatively healthy 70-year-old male, I find this book invaluable.

I bought this for Mom and it is really terrific at focusing on mid and later life issues. Much cheaper than subscribing to the monthly health letter and easier to find!

The deal was good .
