Now & Then : Dubai (Our Earth)

Synopsis

Now & Then Dubai is a large format, coffee table book showing the development of Dubai over the past 100 years using old photographs compared with new photographs taken from a similar angle. The modern photographs, taken using a 6x7 Mamiya RZ camera, are dramatic and colorful, especially compared with the old monochrome pictures shown on the same page. There are 14,000 supporting words of descriptive text. The foreword is by HH Sheikh Ahmed, the Chairman of Emirates Airline.

Robert Nowell first arrived in Oman, at the age of 6, in 1980, where his father was a pilot for Sultan Qaboos. Some of his education took place at the Royal Flight School but his living education was at the hands of his father. By the age of nine, he was a crack shot with a rifle, at ten, he successfully navigated his father across part of the Wahiba Sands in a fierce sandstorm using a handheld compass. By the age of 12 he could drive a Landrover and, more importantly, change a tyre. At 13, he left to be educated at Oakham School in Rutland. His holidays were spend in the Middle East where he travelled extensively all over Oman and the UAE with his father both by landrover and helicopter. After Oakham, Robert read law in London but the lure of the Middle East beckoned and he returned to become an accomplished and determined photographer who undertakes photographic assignments all around the Gulf and Europe. He is currently proceeding with his Licentiate of the Royal Photographic Society and for the past two years has been heavily involved with the promotion of the World Wildlife Fund for Nature. He is also diving towards an instructor rating and intends to take his Private Pilots Licence next summer in Florida when he and his father will be photographing "A Day Above Florida." Simone Nowell arrived in the Middle East at the tender age of 2. On being introduced to the Commander of the Royal Flight of Oman, she declared, "Hello, I'm me!" Since that day Simone has always been her own person. Along with her other brothers and sister, she was educated first at the Royal Flight School and later at Oakham. During the weekends and holidays she was party to the travels of an adventurous father; throwing snowballs on the top of 10,000 ft Jebel Akhdar during a Christmas holiday; rescuing baby turtles from fishing nets on the beaches of Sur; swimming with the dolphins off Muscat; climbing sand dunes in the Empty Quarter and culminatng in flying her father's plane, a Commander 114B, while he was taking aerial photographs. Her father, a very experienced pilot and instructor, detected that she had "a lovely pair of hands on the controls" and sent her off to Fujeirah Flying School where she went solo. Her instructor, Khalid Masood Butt, was equally impressed and entered her for the "spot landing" competition organised by the Dubai Flying Association. With just 14 hours flying time, she competed against 50 men and 3 women PPL holders and won the competition at Ras Al Khaimah International Airport. Ron Hinchey, Chairman of DFA, presented her with the Shell Trophy. Simone was fortunate to be invited to attend the private Latifa School for Girls and graduated with Maths, Physics and Biology A levels. Against her father's wishes, who wanted her to be either a Royal Air Force fighter pilot or a British Airways Boeing 747 jumbo pilot, she, as always, being her own person, choose instead to go for an Engineering degree at UCL. During her industry familiarisation year, having gone solo on a Catepillar backhoe loader, she decided to return to the Middle East to take up journalism. Amongst other achievements, she wrote and ran the "Sharjah What Where" magazine for the Sharjah Commerce and Tourism Development Authority. She now writes for several international magazines and continues to research for the "Now & Then" series.

i have to admit that the pictures in this book are some of the most stunning i have ever seen off dubai. but unfortunatly the books narritive was poorly done. The writer is undescriptive and does not show dubai as a glorious city. its almost as if she was forced to write this book. such a dissapointment compared to the pictures!!!

The book provides perfect pictures and descriptions of Dubai. Anybody even remotely interested in the city should consider this book as required reading.

A splendid look at the magnificent Dubai. I am a major fan of this family of photographers and authors.

Excellent Series. Book has a good comparison of pictures (NOW & THEN ). Loved it...
